The trophies, diamond-studded emblems of esteem presented to the fliers by the Aerial Club of Turkey, adorned the breasts of the day's heroes when they transferred from the liner Excalibur to the tug Macom; when they rode up lower Broadway to city hall; while they were being received by Acting Mayor McKee and during the Advertising Club luncheon in their honor.

honor.

'Each of the emblems contains a four-carat blue diamond, obviously very valuable. Boardman and Polando, having received them as kifts, thought it unnecessary to declare them. This was a mistake, of course, and Customs Officer James V. McCabe said he was anxious to appraise them.

At their hotel, the reception completed, the fliers appinned the flashing medals and placed them in McCabe's care. He promised to have them appraised without loss of time in order that Boardman and Polando may pay any duty assessed by the government and wear them again when they reach Boston for the home town welcome.

Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many Crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip*, as well as a powerful spraying solution for trees, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out-so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

ANOTHER RELIEF AGENCY.

Another grand commission has this time to bring about a co-ordination of state, municipal and other organisms for the relief of the distressed by unemployment this com-ng winter.

THE CONSTITUTION mission will be welcomed, for it is plain enough that a great burden is to fall upon the people next winter to provide for those destitute among them who must be fed, clothed and housed by public and private charity. The American people are a wonderfully sympathetic and charitable Showing Up people. They may be trusted to hold poverty, disease and distress down to the lowest possible degree, but still there will be many cases of acute want and suffering, unless there is found an acceptable formula for reporting cases of actual need to the proper relief organization.

No doubt the president hopes to accomplish something like that through the wisdom and influence of this new commission.

A CONSTITUTIONAL MANDATE.

The failure of the house of the general assembly to vote favorably upon the senate bill to establish and regulate a primary election system for the republican party in this state is regrettable. And when the challenge was repeated with insistence, the superiors of the war college finally decided to send over the crack team of the school to show the girls once and for all that the general staff had been right and that they might as well go back.

Perhaps there are agricultural experts and business actuaries in Georgia who can tell us the whys and wherefores of these surprising figures, pomp of plumes and brilliant uniforms. An hour later they retreated, hopelessly beaten all along the line.

Let the experts explain, discuss and analyze as they will, the simple fact remains that money makes the times.

When money is plentiful, times are good; when money is scarce times are bad.

It was obvious from the first, when Prime Minister MacDonald flew back to London from his holiday at Lossie-mouth, Scotland, that the difficulties of balancing the budget would be very great.

The prime minister was caught between upper and nether millstones— the objections of the trades union congress to readjustment of the "dole" on the one hand, and the insistence of the conservatives that savings, and not new taxes, must be the essence of

Dr. Wilson sent word that he was detained on the Pacific coast and he suggested that the committee call his associate, Deets Pickett.

More than a score of witnesses have been called and Nye is confident of concluding the inquiry this week. He said he had not received the letter which Bishop Cannon announced in London today he had sent to him protesting against the inquiry. Other cities of the state represented at the conference Monday included Brunswick, Augusta, Savannah, Athens, Columbus and Macon.

their glitter as a result of the worst season in history and a scathing attack on sun-bathing by Normandy church leaders.

At the end of the current season today, the Deauville beach, the casino and hotels were in sad contrast to former days of frenzied frolicking by American, French and British millionaires. There was a feeble attempt to revive the old spirit yesterday at the running of the Grand Prix de Deauville, but the "Grande Semaine" (once a week of wildest celebration) was the most dreary in years.

Monsignor Andre de La Villarabel, archbishop of Rouen and primate of Normandy, added to the discomfort of the pleasure colony by issuing a pastoral letter condemning sun-bathing and demanding more decorous beach attire. West End Christian, 94.

There were, however, comparatively few sun-bathers on the Deauville sands to come under the archbishop's fire. Once during the Grand Semaine it was necessary to fight for hotel rooms. Two persons often engaged the same room, one sleeping all day and playing baccarat all night while the other slept at night and played by day.

it was necessary to fight for hotel rooms. Two persons often engaged the same room, one sleeping all day and playing baccarat all night while the other slept at night and played by day.

In the last week it has been possible to get the best of suites without notice. International business conditions have been blamed for keeping most of the usual visitors away from Deauville. There have been two rainy seasons in succession, which caused others to stay away. The great decrease in American visitors to Europe has further cut down the number on the beaches, and Deauville casinos have dropped most of their once bountiful takings.

The charges brought against the sheriff are being pressed by Cannon, large land owner. Kitchens is making an effort to show, he said, that the proceedings resulted from "politics."

The charges include shortage of funds, false arrest and unprovoked shooting of a negro.

A demurrer was filed by the defendant early today and practically all the morning was taken up with hearing the petition. Judge Earl Camp. of Dublin, has not indicated when he would announce his ruling on the writ.

The jury is composed of nine farmers, a timber hauler, automobile salesman and an oil prospector.

"Of the 35 cities that have shown construction contracts in excess of $5,000,000 during the first seven months of 1931, eight reported advances over the same seven-month period of 1930. These were Boston, Yonkers, Buifalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Washington, Houston and San Francisco," Mr. Schnitman states in a survey prepared for the Associated Press.

Boston nearly doubles its 1930 record this year with $44,272,200, he points out. A $3,000,000 advance was made by Yonkers with $8,959,300 thus far in 1931. Buffalo advanced slightly with $10,675,400. Washington's increase was slight but definite in its $40,354,700 total.

"During this period we have noted that the greater tendency toward stabilization has been shown for the most part by the small city and town, particularly the city of under 100,000 population." could "live happily ever after" with a semi-insane little moron like the Kiki Mary plays is beyond belief in this day of intelligent romance.

However, it is to be supposed that Mary wanted to disport herself as much as possible in her farewell appearance. She does. She runs and jumps and somersaults. She screams and shrieks and giggles. And she uses what she thinks is a French accent. Maybe the girls in France talk that way when Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks are making their tours. Maybe.

There was a good sized audience in the Grand Monday afternoon and it is to be expected that the name of Mary Pickford will draw even more for the remainder of the week. And, perhaps, admirers of the girl who was the screen's first exploited star, will find their idol's radiance undimmed. Personally, however, it must be confessed that Mary's memory would have been a finer thing if she hadn't tried so hard to renew the fading largest gold. Cast your eyes down the list of Goodyear Pathfinder prices printed here.

Never in the history of the automobile-never since the first one-cylinder car puffed down the road a generation ago-have tire prices been so low.

But that's not the half of it - Goodyear-built tires give you today mileages undreamed of in other years.

Pathfinder users know what that means in outstanding value and comfort and safety and freedom from trouble.

Remember, Pathfinders are big, rugged, handsome, husky Supertwist balloons, proudly bearing the name Goodyear.

Isn't it foolish economy to try to "get by" any longer on old worn-out tires when you can buy dependable new ones at prices like these?

Miss Martha Hall Is Winner of Tennis Championship at Camp Highland

Climaxing a series of events celebrating Highland Day at the Y. W. C. A. camp, Miss Martha Hall was crowned tennis champion Saturday afternoon in the presence of the queen of Highland, Miss Christine Quillian, and an assemblage including Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Brittain, guests of honor, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Patterson, who acted as host and hostess. Miss Hall proved her prowess by winning the finals in the tennis tournaments which hod been played during the week and then defeating her challenger, Miss Jacque Poole, in a game played at 11 o'clock. She was presented with an engraved loving cup given by Mrs. D. Hoyt Simpson, who as a camper, a junior assistant, counselor and member of the camp committee, spept much time at Camp Highland. Mrs. Simpson presented the cup in tribute to the services rendered to Highland by Miss Lucy Marvin Adams, former camp director. Miss Helen Purdy was declared winner of the loving cup given to the best all-around swimmer of the season. Hodak Contest.

In the kodakery contest, Miss Elizabeth Opel's exhibition was judged most attractive in the older group and Miss Jeanne Matthews' in the group under 16 years. Miss Opel, who has recently come to America from Germany, submitted snapshots picturing camp activities, swimming, hiking and playing, while in distinct contrast, Miss Mathews pictured the beautiful scenery around Highland. They were presented with prizes given by Mrs. Guy Woolford and Mrs. Robert Crumley.

TALKING IT OVER BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited: Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

The Shorter Catechism would be a good name for the letter this young miss writes containing ten questions with comments. The comments are omitted but the questions with answers follow:

How old should a girl be before she goes with boys? Old enough to have some discretion. That age varies from fifteen to eighteen. How long should a girl go with a boy before she lets him kiss her? Until she is sure that he loves her and she loves him, and they' expect to

Does a boy respect a girl he can kiss at any time? He does not. What is petting? Petting is any physical familiarity between the sexes.

How many girls can a boy love at one time?

How many girls can a boy love at one time.

One.

Should a girl write the first letter to a boy or a boy to the girl? Ladies first in everything except overtures to the men.

Should a girl leileve all a boy says when he makes love? One tenth is the limit of what she can safely swallow.

Should a girl ask a boy for a date? Not unless she is tough-hided and oblivious to any rebuke he may administer. What kind of a girl does a boy respect? He respects the kind of girl who respects herself and, therefore, commands his respect. He respects a girl who doesn't do any of the questionable things that you have inquired about in this letter. He respects the girl who embodies his ideals of what a girl should be. That doesn't include petting and wild ways nor free speech, either.

Lead Them Into Temptation

One of the most fascinating features of Contract Bridge is judicious overbidding. By this I do not mean the senseless taking of penalties when the opponents cannot make the contract they have undertaken, nor the taking of a greater penalty score than the adversaries can make at their own bid, but the pushing of the bidding to such a point that opponents the opponents cannot make the contract they have undertaken, nor the taking of a greater penalty score than the adversaries can make at their own bid, but the pushing of the bidding to such a point that opponents cannot make their contract and are forced in self-defense to accept in lieu of the game score a small penalty score. If, through the freaks of distribution, an unexpected game rewards such tactics then the satisfaction is all the greater. However, it is too much to expect the latter, except once perhaps in every blue moon. In the recent National Pair Contract Championship event, at which the trophy given by Mrs. Olga J. Hilliard was at stake, one of the hands afforded the North and South players a beautiful opportunity by judicious overbidding to accept at best a small penalty instead of an assured adverse game, distribution making naught of some of the Aces and Kings upon which, playing defensively, they could ordinarily depend to make their tricks against the Declarer.

The Pass
A pass, though technically not classed as a bid, is the most eloquent and in noctant of all the bids. It is the forcing System, the only "rescue." The sent and the refore, the Responding Hand abandance was tis in necessary to bid such hands rather than risk the loss of even a partial score. If South passes, North with even more strength than he holds would be compelled to pass also, and even although the bidding was reopened later, it is doubtful if North and South would do more than play against four hearts, perhaps doubled, which can be made.

—East's bid would perhaps be three clubs, although the hand is weak in honortricks. This bid would show no losers in the club suit, but might be read by West as showing a willingness to play spandes.

South's Opening bid has shown the loss of opening bid has shown a partial score, If the pande contains no hid.

INSTALLMENT XXXIX.

"When I was out driving this afternoon, I saw Minta May, father. She was crouched down on that bank by the lane—you'll remember it—crying as if her heart would break. I got out of the car and questioned her, but could get nothing out of her except that Paw was rampagin' something fierce, and that he'd slanped her face and pulled her hair. She cried terribly, poor child. I asked her if he'd been drinking, and she said if he wasn't now, he would be later on. I stopped by the office as I came back, and Joe told me the man hadn't been working for a week."

"Tomorrow's Saturday and you'll have a half a day's holiday. We'll drive over and see Mrs. Mears—shall we?"

"Elle me to hang Paw for it?"

"Minta—" he began.

"Shet up! I'm a goin' to have you hung for this." she blazed.

"You done it now, you fool," said his wife. "You best git, while the gittin's good." She turned her back on him.

"Get—away." he gasped. "Quick! You—were—mistaken." He fainted then.

car, and the two drove off.

The place was quite different. Sagging steps and broken shutters were repaired. Mrs. Mears, in a decent calico "wropper," with shoes on and her hair neatly brushed and pinned, met them at the door. Her manner was more placating than of yore. Two or three of the children came out and greeted Miss Sally with shy friendliness. Another child, at the mother's bidding, brought chairs for the visiness. Another child, at the mounts bidding, brought chairs for the visi-

After a while Sally asked for Minta May. She had heard such good re-ports of her at school, she said. The ports of her at school, she said. The teacher had told her that Minta May "picked up" quickly, and was a very promising scholar, By the way, where was Minta May now? They'd like working for a week."

"Tomorrow's Saturday and you'll drive over and see Mrs. Mears—shall we?"

"I'll be glad to. Somehow that poor child troubled me."

The next afternoon she got out her car, and the two drove off.
The place was quite different. Sagdrove like the wind, her mind one mad terror. "O God, God, don't let father die? He's all I have, and You know he's never done anything but kindness!" she prayed. And she drove and drove. The red stain spread and dripped. The car seemed full of blood.

As she neared the gates she blew and screamed piercingly. People began to run toward her. As the ear stopped they crowded around it and saw Minta white as death, holding the unconscious body of Henry Winstead, who was dripping blood.

"Paw shot him." Minta May explained, stonily. "Paw shot him!" And as they lifted the wounded man out of her hold, she began to cry, bleakly. One of the workmen, recognizing her, took her home to his wife.

made no motion to call the girl.

"Couldn't we see Minta, Mark. Mears? Sally asked directly.

"But why, in heaven's name?" asked both visitors.

"Because she's hidin' out from he Paw, that's why." said Mrs. Mears reluctantly, but ferociously. Her Paw's pinm beside hissel, he is. He swears he'll kill her. Godamighty, he's plun ravin' wild, Paw is. And she won't tell nothin—she's that obstinnit! She wouldn't say nothin', even when he 'most slapped the face off n her and yanked her hair till I had to pull him off her."

Sally and Henry looked at her with horrified eyes. What was the meaning of this?

But before they could speak. Paw himself appeared not the scene, his face red, his eyes red, his hair disher-led. And he carried a shotgun.

"What's that theer old devil doin' hyth?" he shouted furiously. Sally perceived, with terror and disgust, that he was very, very drunk, indeed. "I tole you I'd have to pay for themelie's he give the children with my blood, didn't 1? Well, hain't I done it? He's ruint Minta May!" he howled.

"Henry Winstead stared at the raving lunatic with distended eyes. What was he being accused of? Paw, dancing up and down, cursed him villely, "But—I assure you—"Henry began.

"I'd don't aim to let you be sure of nothin' but dyin'!" shrieked Mears, And before any of them could make a meve to prevent, he had flung the gan.

ATLANTA, GA., TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 25, 1931.

O'Shocker, Steinborn, Jones, Zarnas Clash on Mat Tonight; Giants and Yanks Continue Strong Fights for Runner-Up Post

When Abner Doubleday devised the game of baseball back in 1839 he layed out a "diamond" for play and the dimensions haven't been changed since that time. And it's been 92 years. The rule makers must have forgot about it.

When they compiled the first rules in 1845 a club had to score 21 runs to win and as soon as one club had that many the game was over. The other side getting their turn at bat, of course. (Oh, he's going to be fair about it.)

The first match game was played at Hoboken (git on board, soldier) and the score was 23 to 1 in "four hands," which was what they called innings then.

The home plate is called that today, Mister, because the original home plate was a flat, circular piece of iron, which looked like one of the boarding house plates. (What fun. Maybe he knows who struck Looney.)

Henry Chadwick wrote the first rule book in 1857, and he thought up the idea of playing nine innings. It was a "ten-hand" game in 1851 that made him think of it. He wanted to stop the game some time. And now they play double-headers or 18 hands. (Sixteen in the minors, where they cheat the customers out of two in-

And here's a honey. The rules said, in 1859, that no player who received money for his services would be allowed to play. (Quite a few owners are sure they were born 72 years too

Henry Chadwick, who must have had quite a noggin, invented the scoring system and began to keep those averages. (What was Irvin Howe doing then?)

In 1866 Robert Addy, playing for Rockford, got so excited he left his feet and slid on his stummick to second base. And that, pal, was the first stolen base. (Come over some day and bring YOUR sewing.)

And in 1867 (hold your sides) the batter had the rivilege of calling for a low ball or a high ball to hit. And in those days there were high balls to hit after the Cincinnati was the first city to pay salaries. That was in 868-29 years after the game first started. Now, that was a long time to wait for a raise.

In 1872 the game began to show the first evidences of softening up. They changed the home plate from IRON TO WHITE MARBLE. (The softies.)

And in 1874 two teams visited England and played with 10 men on each side. What did Heydlar mean advancing his 'new" idea a couple of years ago?

It was in 1875 that the folks who objected to the softening influence of marble plates knew for sure that the players were turning into a lot of sissies.

That was the year when Charley Waite started wearing a glove and Jim Tyng, Harvard catcher, wore a mask invented

Fred Thayer. (Does it seem warm to you in here?)

And that scandal in 1919 when the "Black Sox" sold out-it wasn't the first one. Not by any means. In 1877 four players were expelled from the National league for selling games.

In 1878 they had thought about turnstiles for the gates. Aha, some of the ticket takers were taking.)

In 1879 they passed a rule making it necessary the pitcher to face the batter before delivering the ball. Always making things harder for the pitcher, they are. As late as 1882 a batter couldn't get a base on balls until wen had been called. And that same year they decided a race

Jack Washburn was next and Pat O'Shocker beat him. There followed matches with others and then came a test with McMillen, another youngster. And O'Shocker won again. Since that time he has been going at a fast pace.

O'Shocker has engaged in more than 300 matches. His favorite holds are the arm stretch and the leg strangle. Steinborn is well known to Atlanta fans. He is always dangerous because of his tremendous strength. He knows some holds and his bear hug hold, which can crack ribs, is the one

The Yanks gained a full game today by defeating Chicago, 8 to 5, while Washington was losing a 6-to-5 verdict to Detroit. Babe Ruth, mainspring of the New York attack, led his mates today with his thirty-seventh homer of the season, a double and two singles in five times at bat, to drive in three runs and score two.

Dale Alexander's double with two out in the ninth gave Detroit the winning run against Washington. The Senators got away to a three-run lead in the first, and after Detroit tied the score went two runs ahead in the seventh, only to have the Tigers even the count in their half of the inning and win out in the ninth.

Breaking Records.

Tennis and baseball are entirely different when it comes to breaking records. In tennis, you are on your own. In baseball there are 17 others who figure.

Mrs. Moody, who won her seventh title Sunday, won't be stopped for some time in tennis, since she happens to be much the best woman tennis player in the game. But out in St. Louis, Bob Grove turned in one of his finest games and yet was beaten 1-0 when Coffman suppressed the Athletics. It was tough luck to have a record checked in this fashion, as it may be years before anyone else ever gets another chance to shoot at a mark where one must keep on winning for two or three

To avoid this waste, I have attempted to hole out on these long putts. After all, a 30-foot putt can drop, as well as a three-footer if you get the line. With this in mind, you will find that you are hitting, constantly, putts of more accuracy, keeping the line better, and becoming a far more reliable player on the greens.

Many girl golfers confuse speed of the hands with the punch of the club as it hits into the ball. So, in my 20th and final article, I will describe how punch is put into the golf shot.

Those interested in the budding crop of coming heavyweights will have part of the answer in the next two nights. Charlie Retzlaff, the best of the sluggers, is to have his shot at Joe Sekyra, a good boxer who knows his trade. It has been some time since any new star was added to the sporting list, but here is one to a certainty—a young entry who can set a high level of play and hold it week after week against the best in the game.

Vines could use a few more pounds of flesh upon his frame, but then Bill Johnston rarely weighed more than 120 when he was one of the best in the world.

When it comes to records, the Chicago White Sox just cracked one when they drew out 55,000 fans at home with a club tied in a bow knot for last place. Who can spot an improvement on that one?

The Battle of Beverly.

The Metropolitan Bid. It has been nine years since a met-ropolitan golf star from the New York district landed an amateur championship. His name was Jess Sweetser and he turned the trick at Brookline in 1922, beating such stars as Jess Guilford, Willie Hunter, Bobby Jones and Chick Evans to arrive.

and Chick Evans to arrive.

The leading entry from a New York club will be Phil Perkins, of Lido, but Great Britain has a stronger claim upon his golfing skill, and his case has already been discussed. Next to Perkins, the bet from the big town is George Voigt, a fine golfer who may find Beverly a trifle too long. Paired with Voigt there is also Gene Homans, who went as far as the final chapter last year, where Bobby Jorés completed his cycle. Homans and Voigt are good enough to go a long way, good enough to win with the breaks, as both are stout match players. George Voigt, a fine golfer who may find Beverly a trifle too long. Then there is Maurice Mc-Carthy who in other seasons has shown rare spurts of skill and class. He came within an ace of nicking Bobby Jones at Minikahda and he finally caught and surrounded George Von Elm at Merion last year on the tenth extra green in a match which broke all records.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(P)—While prominent bankers were inclined to view the change of government in England with optimism, the financial markets were left largely to their own devices today, and in the main drifted somewhat lower.

Despite the formation of a national all-party cabinet in England, determined to balance the budget, the fact the crisis was severe enough to lead to such measures was at last sufficiently impressed upon the speculative formunity to have a somewhat depressing influence for a time.

The stock market was rather decisively heavy for a time, despite extremely dull trading, but a late upturn reduced the loss, as measured by the price average of 90 leading issues, to only 1-2 point. It was notable, however, that the Standard Statistics-Associated Press price average of 20 rails finally dipped a fraction below the bear market minimum of June 2. While this average goes back only five years, older compilations indicate that the rails as a group are selling around the levels of 1923.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24.—(P)—
The cotton market experienced an active and considerably higher start today owing to a sharp advance in Liverpool cables said to be due to the resignation of the labor ministry infreshland. There was also considerable short covering in anticipation of very bullish ginning statistics. Prices advanced 24 to 25 points during the first hour. The census bureau at the beginning of the second hour reported ginnings to August 16 of only 90.414 bales, which was even smaller than expected, comparing with 572S10 last year. As small ginnings had been already discounted, the market gradually quieted down and prices cased off 12 to 14 points.

After midsession there was a refinewal of short covering which was absorbed by trade buying and prices rallied almost to the early highs. The final trading showed a slight reaction on realizing and the market closed steady, showing net gains for the day of 20 to 22 points.

COTTON—The current period of hard sledding for the cotton industry has been a period of fair profits for many converters. Textile World reports. It is said to be the small converter especially who has been able to shape his business so that its net results are in many cases better than the results for a similar period in 1930. The hand-to-mouth policy of the average converter has given him an opportunity to benefit from the steady decline in the price of gray cotton goods since the first of the year.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Discouraged by early weakness in atock market holders all grains lost confidence completely and a wave of liquidation developed which carried all grains to new low prices for the season. New low level on wheat for the lifetime of the Board of Trade, corn since 1900 and oats since 1897. There was nothing in grain news to account for this selling but on the contrary several constructive developments from the farm board chairman encouraging hope of further liberal sales policy to, foreign governments, a fairly favorable set of statistics and moderate export trade. markets, forcing prices on all deliveries of all grains except March wheat to the lowest levels of the season. Trading started with wheat showing moderate strength in sympathy with firmness at Liverpool, where the resignation of the labor ministry was regarded as bullish, but abrupt downswings in oats and corn quickly weakened wheat.

Wheat closed weak, 5-8 to 11-4 cent lower; corn, 3-8 to 11-8 off; oats 1-8 to 3-4 down, and provisions registering 8 to 20 cents decline.

A report from Czecho-Slovakia said crops there were much smaller and a report from Russia said harvesting weather was unfavorable. Reports from China said that the farm board had offered 30,000,000 bushels of wheat to that country on a 10-year credit plan, the wheat to sid stream.

WANT!

Even the two prisoners were unbound and made to row. Jason wondered what it was these fierce men so feared. All too soon he was to discover! ROOMS AND BOARD

Gridley wondered to what unknown destination he was going. At length the river widened and although the landscape looked less gloomy, he mo-ticed the Korgars now appeared nervous and evidently on the watch for some hidden danger. All hands that could be spared were put to the oars.

TIFTON, Ga.. Aug. 24.—Football practice at the Georgia State College for Men will begin on Monday, September 7. Coach Orion Mitchell has arranged a hard schedule and wants every man to report on the field for the initial workout. The majority of last year's team will be back, but with new men coming in there will be plenty of fighting for places on the Ram sound.

The Ram schedule calls for three hard games at the first of the season, Howard College in Birmingham, the University of Miami in Miami, and Southern College in Lakeland. The first two games are to be played at night.

delay tonight in orders to reopen its sleeping gushers.

Although the $1 per barrel top price was made effective in Oklahoma and Kansas by the Phillips Petroleum Company, and reported promised by two unnamed concerns, governors of three states were not ready to order valves twisted open in oil fields. In stead, the shutdown of wells, enforced by martial law in Oklahoma and east three states were not ready to order valves twisted open in oil fields. Instead, the shutdown of wells, enforced by martial law in Oklahoma and east Texas, spread to a major Kansas area. The dollar level was the primary goal of the shutdown movement but and what appeared to be a bottle was thrown after her.

Mrs. Price died a few hours later.
In a statement she told Assistant District-Attorney Walter Schiller:
"It was my fault." both Governors Murray, of Oklahoma, and Governor Woodring, of Kansas, indicated curb orders would remain in force until the price is general.

Governor Sterling, of Texas, said mar-tial law in that state's new fields would not be affected by the present higher prices. Two major oil companies, it was announced at Murray's office here, telegraphed an offer at the $1 top price for Oklahoma and Kansas but R. D. McManus, aide to the governor, eclined to name them in the executive's absence. Monday was back at his duties in the city hall after recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident last June at Royston.

Luke Arnold, executive secretary to Mayor Key, Monday returned to his desk from a vacation at Daytona Beach. Arnold sported a deep coat of tan and a new mustache.
